If You Want a Hunch, Here It Is

When John L. Sullivan fought James J. Corbett, he was three or four years younger than Jess Willard is today. He had not fought for three years and three months. He showed at New Orleans sad lack of experience in actual ring work.

Willard's last bout was with Frank Moran, three years and four months or so ago. What a hunch?

By TAD.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 24.-Jack Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns, are happier right now than ever before. They think that they see weakness developing on the Willard side. The first laugh that Dempsey got was when some one told him that Jess wanted both men to tape up their hands in the ring so that everybody could get a good slant at the job. Dempsey said he would do anything Willard asked.

"It sounds kind of funny to me, though," said Jack, laughing. "You know those fellows that I knock out always swear that I have lead in my gloves. When that old right socks them and the birds start singing they figure that nothing else but an anvil or an iron house fell on
